
Research consultants required

We are a thriving international consultancy specialised in health policy seeking experienced research consultants to support the work of our dynamic team

The Health Policy Partnership (HPP) is a rapidly growing independent consultancy specialising in health policy (see here for more information).

Our portfolio covers a wide range of topics, often focusing on chronic disease and strategic health system challenges. Projects tend to be multidisciplinary in nature and involve collaborating with leading clinicians, patient groups, policymakers and research organisations at a national, European and international level. Our company is growing rapidly, and we require experienced research consultants to support the work of our talented team.

Research consultants will be expected to undertake desk research, interviews, policy analysis and writing, working independently but under the direction of an HPP project lead.

We are looking for excellence in policy research and writing

You should meet the following criteria:

- ✓ A PhD or Master's in health policy, public health or a related field; additional research experience including conducting high-quality literature reviews; a keen eye for hierarchies of information and potential limitations in available data
- ✓ Proven experience of translating desk research, interviews and policy analysis into highly credible, impactful narratives that communicate a case for change among a target audience, most notably policymakers
- ✓ Extensive experience of undertaking qualitative interviews and synthesising data gathered from these with literature review findings
- ✓ Ability to work closely with leading experts on a given topic (especially clinicians, policymakers and patient advocates), earning their trust and engaging them in co-creating final outputs
- ✓ Ability to work collaboratively with external review on the development of documents

Additional skills and experience of interest

- ✓ Language skills would be an advantage
